A new range to serve the growing demand for recycled products

In the last two years, demand for recycled papers has been growing steadily. This demand has been fueled by brand owners responding to a growing concern for a more efficient use of natural resources and circular economy. Recycled papers fit well into the 3R (Re-duce, Re-use, Re-cycle) initiatives growing all over the world. With this new distribution agreement, Antalis will reinforce its leadership position into providing sustainably produced alternatives to the market

« We are delighted with this new distribution agreement. With the end of Arjowiggins Graphic recycled paper ranges, we needed to find alternatives for our customers. We believe that Mondi has the right product and service to become the market leader in the recycled uncoated paper segment. They also have a good track record of establishing strong brands in the market. Together with NAUTILUS® we are confident we can champion the benefits of using recycled paper» says Xavier Jouvét, Group Marketing & Purchasing Director for Antalis.

« Antalis has a global presence and a strong connection to agencies and brand owners, which will help us accelerate the adoption of NAUTILUS® and thus spread sustainable paper solutions. Working closely together, we can grow the recycled graphic paper market even more», Johannes Klumpp, Marketing & Sales Director Uncoated Fine Paper at Mondi Group, commented.
